Name(s)	Description
Alessandro Schiesaro(1), Astrid	The water, energy, time, and is it possible to keep the whole while practicing water? Is it possible to keep the whole while practicing breathing? Is it possible to keep the whole while practicing moving/ flowing/ dancing? Tapping into 25 years of practical experience, combined with my recent studies of dance science at the University of Kent, I will attempt to answer the above questions in three lectures. Professional dancers are not necessarily the best at this, but they are certainly the most practiced. Their bodies are their instruments, and they must be in tune with their movements, with other participants. Particular focus is given to individual capacities, to the musicality of the exercises and to breathing.
Alexander Tsiaras(1), Barbara Frank(2)	Science Fiction, Death & Strength, Israel What is a contemporary vision? Maybe a patchwork of different styles, created by experience and stimulated into a unique vision? Maybe a vision that is not contemporary, but timeless? Maybe a vision that is not a vision at all? Alexander Tsiaras and Barbara Frank have been working together for 15 years, creating a unique visual language that has been described as "Renaissance Anatomy". Their work has been featured in the world's most prestigious art magazines and provides a consistent theme to my show structure. Redefining, muscular anthropology and the ability to see beyond the surface of the skin, to the inner workings of the human body, is a constant theme in their work.
Alexander Tsiaras(1), Barbara Frank(2)	In his ballet video, Alexander draws from his years of experience as a dancer, including influences of various cultures and styles, to create a unique vocabulary of movement.
